TAGA Harmony Nostalgic TH-12 speakers reviewed by "wstereo.pl" (12-2024).

Modern sound in a retro dress

They look attractive and are built according to old principles, in a way that will surely captivate lovers of the vintage audio. Large, solid enclosures, a large bass speaker, regulators on the front wall - lovers of retro equipment should be delighted.

In terms of sound, the speakers draw attention with dynamics, verve, and freedom of presentation. Tonally, they are neutral, it is difficult to find any warmth or softening in them, they sound relatively light, but they cope well with rendering the scale of sound. The resolution and accuracy of the presentation leave no room for dissatisfaction, they are good speakers in this price group. The vividness of the sound is also at a good level. The presentation of space may leave some dissatisfaction, but you can't have everything. A plus for the ability to adjust the high and medium tones.
